A TRADITIONAL SEDER

by Rabbi Haaz

Although Passover requires sore arms, backs, and shoulders from scrubbing, reams and reams of aluminum foil, and constant crumbs on the floor, it is, for most Jews, the favorite holiday of the Hebrew calendar. And, on whatever level each of us is observant in our daily Jewish lives, we raise the bar a bit (or a lot) on Passover. Tradition becomes more important on Passover than at any other time during the year. We are extra careful to avoid eating bread, and, without a traditional seder, it would not feel like we celebrated Passover. However, tradition is a funny thing. The tradition that we have come to know is actually not the tradition of our ancestors. This is because tradition is change, especially on Passover. We experience and understand the Passover seder as having always been uniform and consistent, but this is true only since the 15th century. From the biblical era until the 15th century, the Passover seder was characterized by change and fluidity. And, this fluidity was not only from generation to generation but from year to year and from household to household. Fluidity was the tradition, but this fluidity and the creativity it inspired at the seder were eliminated with the invention of the printing press in the 15th century.

HOME SWEET HOME

by Eileen Daling

Home means many different things for many different people. It can be a place, a feeling, a person or a thing. Several weeks ago, Michael and I accompanied Rabbi Haaz to Florida to find, in some ways, our home away from home. Why, you say? Well for me, it gave us the time to visit new and old friends while giving us all a feeling for our Adath Israel home.

We were able to visit with many who are just snowbirds while others live in Florida permanently now but still feel that Adath Israel is their spiritual home. Our first night was dinner with Ann and Arthur Lerner, and Hyime Paley and Deb Rudman. Spent the evening catching up on what was happening in their lives and ours. It was a relaxed social evening. On our second day, Rabbi Haaz headed to the west coast and met Bob Poliner for coffee and some conversation. Then we all met at Sandi and Carl Haftel's in Venice for a delicious lunch that Sandi prepared. Barbara Rothman, Liz Whittaker's sister who also lives on the west coast, joined us. It was a delightful visit. Afterwards, Michael and I headed back to the east coast while Rabbi Haaz continued on to Sarasota to meet with Sadie and Sol Laufer. Rabbi Haaz joined them for a dinner and Once Haggadot began to be mass printed, the customs of the Passover seder were locked down and have remained that way until recent years when we have seen an explosion of themed Haggadot. We are beginning to go back to our tradition of change, and we are experiencing just how much fun it can be to share a fluid and creative seder with our loved ones and friends. This year, do include the core items of the seder that connect you to the past 600 years of fixed tradition, but also celebrate the creativity and the uniqueness of those who gather at your table to honor the fluid tradition that dates back thousands of years to the Exodus from Egypt. Please join our seder workshops at Adath Israel on Sunday, April 10 from 9am-noon for ideas and tools to help you enrich your Passover seder and honor the tradition of change. Hag kasher v'sameakh!

PASSOVER – A CHARITABLE TIME

ADATH ISRAEL MATZAH/MA'OT HITTIN

This Fund is self-liquidating, that is, all contributions will be allocated at Passover time with no continuing balance. Please be assured that all funds are allocated in the strictest of confidence.

Contribution checks should be made payable to Adath Israel (please put “Matzah Fund” on the memo line) and sent to the office by April 11, 2016, so that distribution can take place prior to Passover.

program at their synagogue. On Friday morning, Rabbi Haaz met us at the home of Claire and Irv Pincus, Susan Miller's parents, for a delightful lunch at the clubhouse. Following lunch, Irv and Rabbi Haaz were off for conversation over a game of golf. Michael returned to our condo and Claire and I had an afternoon to visit, talk and get to know one another better. Saturday night, we met at a restaurant for dinner with Barbara and Fred Edelstein, Judi Merida and Bonnie Rose. We brought them up to date on Adath Israel news and they filled us in on their recent travels. Judi and Danny recently visited Cuba and Barbara and Fred visited many different countries. It was a wonderful evening. Sunday was a busy day. We started by having brunch and conversation with Marge and Herb Kartiganer at their clubhouse. Following a delightful visit with them, we had coffee and a visit with Ann and Arthur Lerner in their home. We ended the day with dinner at Phyllis and Arthur Waldman's.

We tried to connect with others but the timing just was not right. They either had other commitments during our visit or were feeling under the weather. The hope is that it can work out better for the next visit.

Overall, it was a truly wonderful trip. They all truly appreciated the news and gifts we brought them from all of you at Adath Israel and we were thrilled to catch up on what is happening in their lives. I was personally honored to have the opportunity to be your representative in Florida this year.

This trip honestly shows that home is also a feeling in your heart that comes from being with friends.

As always, please remember check out the rest of this Kolot for flyers detailing more events and other exciting happenings in the months to come.

PASSOVER INVITATION

Dear Members,

The Seder is a stirring, enjoyable and traditional activity which has a special place in our yearly cycle. However, some Congregation Adath Israel members do not have Seders to attend. We do not want anyone in our community to be in this position. All are invited to attend our Second Night Community Seder (see flyer elsewhere in this newsletter for details) and we are also going to try to match seder-makers with seder-goers in the hope of ensuring that everyone has a wonderful holiday.

Here's how to participate:

If you do not have plans to attend a First Night Seder would like to do so, please call Joanna in our office (860-346-4709) and let her know. Also, let her know if you need transportation and we will also try to arrange for that.

If you are having a First Night Seder and would like to extend your hospitality, please let Joanna know how many people you can accommodate.

This is a wonderful way to celebrate and inject variety into the holiday, and to learn how others have celebrated the Seder differently from what you may be used to. Please call the office as soon as you can, but no later than Monday, April 11th (first Seder is on Friday, April 22nd) to let us know of your interest in participating in this simcha. We will do our best to make this new program work.

Thank you and Hag Sameach!

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE RELIGIOUS SCHOOL

by Anna Elfenbaum

Religious School Principal

Often lessons learned in the classrooms of our school lead to learning for our parents too. When students practice for Shabbat L'chol Adat, review the Alef Bet or share a topic that was discussed about the History of Zionism or Rosh Chodesh, families have the opportunity to learn with and from their kids.

This year, the Religious School has had a series of special programs for families that are designed for joint learning, starting with Sukkot and then Tu Bshvat. Now, with Spring in the air, we are excited for Passover's arrival and another wonderful experience for our families. On Sunday, April 10 during Religious School, families will be invited to learn from Rabbi Haaz, Lynn Bennett and Anna Elfenbaum as we discuss ways of making our Seders engaging for everyone around the table including the children. Families will also have the opportunity to work together to create fun Seder supplements that will help everyone understand and relate to the Passover story.

We are glad that the Religious School creates so many opportunities for Jewish learning.

Happy Spring!
