Smashing Idols

*Rabbi Nelly
Altenburger*

Dear Friends,

After the High Holidays, we reemerge in the cycle of reading the Torah. The main character for us is Avraham Avinu, or Abraham. His story is ultimately the story of the Jewish people and, one could argue, the story of the soul of any person who searches for the Transcendent, for a life of meaning and connection.

There is a great question posed: what was it about Avraham that made God talk to him? There are many answers to that, but my favorite is that there was nothing essentially different in him that was missing in anyone else. Avraham just said 'yes' to a general call that went through the entirety of creation.

Our Priorities

*Adam Finkelstein
President*

With the High Holidays now behind us, I wanted to reiterate what you can expect from the board for the rest of the year. As I discussed on Rosh Hashanah, we are hoping to focus the vast majority of our attention on three main areas that we deem most necessary for the continued growth of our congregation and community.

The first is the security and physical safety of anyone in our buildings. I have both written and talked quite a bit about this, and will have more to say in the coming months, but suffice it to say, we've made great strides and yet still have more to do.

The second area is our financial sustainability. Again, this is a topic that I've spoken very candidly about in the past. We are fortunate to have a very healthy endowment, but are dependent on the annual interest from those accounts in order to meet our operating expenses. The system works, and has enabled us to offer lower membership fees than any other synagogue in the state, but requires constant vigilance to maintain that delicate balance.

The third category is one I wanted to expand more on here and that's our commitment to maintaining and growing our membership. While we continue to entrust our services to the Rabbi and Ritual Committee, we also recognize that services aren't the only reason people are looking for a synagogue. Especially in times like these, with antisemitism at unprecedentedly high levels, I believe that most of our members are also looking for community. Some of the most vibrant Jewish organizations I've seen and observed over the years are that way because, while they may be inspired by our rituals, they continue to connect beyond those hours.

As a board, we've had ongoing discussions about how to address this, many of which were initiated by Carly during her presidency. While we continue to explore long-term solutions, hopefully you've noticed increased offerings dating back to last spring, ranging from Joel Chasnoff Live to a UConn basketball watch party, as well as more solemn topics like Adele Raemer and Kibbutz Nirim along with our most recent Jewish Life in Middletown celebration. There's more to come too including a Pampered Chef Party and an early New Year's celebration.

The point is that we believe we can be, and are, united by a wide variety of subjects, and we are exploring every opportunity possible to continue to build those bridges of community.

One final note, even in times like these – when our safety is paramount – we will maintain our open-door policies within our building and our events. So, if you have family, friends, or loved ones who are interested in coming to any service, program, or anything else we're doing, please know they are always welcome, whether they are Jewish or not.

God's call to Avraham to leave behind his land, birthplace, and father's house represents shedding layers of ego that a person needs to do in order to reach the state of searching for something. When we are content with how things are, where things stand, with whom we are, we don't search and we don't grow. This process is demonstrated in the story of Abraham breaking the idols in Terach's shop. The idols represent our being stuck to what is – in an idol's case, what is literally in front of your eyes. Abraham – or the soul – needs to break those idols once the soul remembers it is here in this world to grow.

That moment when the soul is reminded of its quest for the search for meaning, that moment when the soul feels the lack, that is the call of God. Yearning is central to the spiritual quest, the deep desire to transcend the known and step into the infinite. Of course, we can distract ourselves with all sorts of diversions to try to forget the yearning. But embracing the yearning is fundamental to finding meaning, to growing, and to becoming a better person.

Surprisingly, however, Avraham is never called a tzadik, a righteous person. There is only one character to whom the Torah applies that title: Noah. Not only the narrative voice in the story does so, but even a scene has God telling Noah directly that Noah and his family will be saved because he is the tzadik, the righteous person of all that generation. And it means something – there is a danger in the title. This is made explicit in the end of parshat Noah, an end so bad that we never ever teach it in Hebrew school. Noah ends up passed out drunk, being sexually abused. He never has another child, blinded by pain and anger to the point that he curses not the son that abused him, but his own grandson.

After that collapse of a righteous person, the Torah never calls anyone else a tzadik – this is because once you believe yourself to be righteous, you begin idol worshipping, you begin being stuck in your vision of yourself, in the contentment of not having to search anymore.

There is no “enlightenment”, as a status you arrive at, as a spiritual station from which you can't fall, in our tradition. This is because a human being can always become more perfect, and Avraham's journey, with all its ups and downs, shows that to us.

May we continue to grow.

Warmly,

Rabbi Nelly

Adath Israel's 120th Anniversary

The Jewish Community Foundation, Jewish Historical Society of Greater Hartford, and Middlesex Historical Society partnered with us to present Jewish Life in Middletown in celebration our 120th anniversary. It was an enlightening and engaging afternoon with presentations on the history of the Jewish community and Adath Israel from the 1800s to the present, a reminiscence of growing up in Middletown in the 1950s, and background on and a guided tour of our Adath Israel Museum. Also featured was the opportunity for attendees to record their own oral histories of Jewish life in Middletown. Those who recorded memories found the experience moving and powerful.

To keep the momentum going, we invite you to share your memories of Jewish life. We are interested in everything from your bubbe's kugel recipe, to your family's Chanukkah traditions, to what it was like to be Jewish in your high school. We are looking for items from all decades and aspects of life. Please send your submission to office@adathisraelct.org or Adath Israel, P.O. BOX 337, Middletown, CT 06457. This amazing event would not have happened without the hard work of committee chair, Ruth Borsuk, Rabbi Nelly Altenburger, Michelle Grossman, Sandra Beckman, and Richard Kamins. Todah Rabah.

Adath Israel Teens Lead Rosh Hashanah Family Services: Embracing Tradition and Leadership

This year, a small group of teens was invited to lead our Rosh Hashanah Family services. Over the course of a few weeks, Michaela Altenburger, Ethan Olczak and Maya Shapiro Rosado met with school principal, Anna Elfenbaum, to explore the richness of the Rosh Hashanah themes and prayers. They took their new learning, and with it they collaborated and created a prayer experience that included games, stories, song and conversation for our young children and their families. By sharing their insights and leading parts of the service, the trio infused the experience with new energy and perspective.

By engaging with the traditions of Rosh Hashanah in a meaningful way, our teens are not only deepening their connection to Jewish practice but also stepping into leadership roles within our synagogue community. Their participation in these sacred services helps ensure that our traditions continue to thrive and evolve for future generations.

Plans are already in the works for teen-led Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur services next year!

Countdown to Chanukkah and 2025! This Chanukkah, let's rededicate ourselves to reading. May the light of the menorah brighten our spirits and show us new ways to explore, connect and learn!

recommending the book and leading the discussion.

The book selected for our December 3rd meeting was The Talented Mrs. Mandelbaum: The Rise and Fall of an American Organized-Crime Boss by Margaret Fox. This is the story of Marm Mandelbaum who lived in Gilded Age New York and ran America's biggest crime syndicate. She was a schemer and a dreamer who turned theft into a viable business. What an unforgettable character!

The Book Club meetings are held at The Nester Center at 7 p.m. as well as via Zoom. We are using a hybrid model to maximize attendance. Come join us!

Why you should vote MERCAZ USA in elections to the World Zionist Congress. Polls are open online between March 10th and May 4th.

1. Voting MERCAZ USA helps deliver $25 million for Conservative congregations like yours as well as organizations like Ramah, USY, Sisterhoods, Men's Clubs, and more.
2. Voting MERCAZ USA delivers millions to the Masorti Movement and its institutions in Israel, helping promote pluralism and shape an Israel that's a welcoming home for each and every kind of Jew.
3. Voting MERCAZ USA strengthens pro-democracy forces in Israel by making it clear that world Jewry supports protecting democracy in the Jewish state. Your vote also delivers support for key civil society organizations and helps promote gender and LGBTQ+ equality in Israel and the Jewish world.
4. Voting MERCAZ USA will make sure that KKL/JNF's $2 billion budget goes not to extremists' pet projects, but to those who need it most: the communities hardest hit on October 7th. We'll also ensure our hostages and their families are taken care of through the government's Hostages and Hostages Family Directorate, which is now under the auspices of the WZO.
5. Voting MERCAZ USA prevents a takeover of the Jewish Agency by ultra-Orthodox extremists, which would endanger the ability of so many in our communities to make Aliyah and be recognized as Jewish in the Jewish state. It would also put our ability to fund shlichim and shinshinim in our communities at risk.

Voting is a simple, online process that takes just five minutes and five dollars

Quinnipiac Students Visit

At November's Pray-Eat-Sing we had the pleasure to host a class from Quinnipiac University led by Prof. Gabriel Acevedo. Thanks to members taking students under their wings, the students had an in-depth experience of Shabbat Evening Services, a kosher dinner, and table songs. During dessert the class toured the Main Sanctuary where they heard a brief history of the community and building and had a Q&A with Richard Kamins & Joanna Schnurman on how synagogues work. According to Prof. Acevedo: The visit was so very well received and led to continual dialogue and conversation all the way back to campus. ... (Y)our kindness ... is also very much appreciated by me and the students.

Adath Israel Community Art Show

Many thanks to Miryam Welbourne for conceiving and Ethan Warner-Crane for shepherding the Adath Israel Community Art Show. Featuring pieces by members Miryam Welbourne and Allen Silberstein, the show allowed the artists and viewers to explore and express their responses to the horror of October 7 and all that has followed. As Miryam put it: It was personally very meaningful to me to share my work with the community. Seeing the paintings on the walls next to Allen's sculptures is a special experience that I wouldn't have had without the Synagogue. I couldn't have envisioned a better show. Those who viewed the show were equally appreciative of having a space to experience and share the emotions that only art evokes.
